1. IT'S EASY.
With an intuitive, user-friendly dashboard, you can easily track student progress and needs. The program provides at-a-glance information on academics, performance and expectations, financial means, socio-emotional issues, and behaviors and activities. A red-yellow-green color code indicates areas of concern.

2. IT WORKS.
Most important, this program works. Since its inception at Buffalo State, MAP-Works has been effective in improving our retention rates and helping first-year students be more successful.

- Identify and reach out to at-risk students early.
- Coordinate efforts with other faculty/staff through alerts and notes.
- Prepare for student meetings in advance.

What is MAP-Works?
MAP-Works is an online program that allows faculty and other staff members who have direct contact with students to easily view information on student progress and needs.

How does it work?
First-year students voluntarily complete a survey during the third week of their fall or spring semesters. Their survey responses generate an individualized report that the student may view online at any time. A report is also generated for faculty and staff directly connected to the student. This report offers insight into a student’s particular challenges, allowing Buffalo State professionals to provide timely and targeted support and/or referral to campus resources during the student’s transition to college—before it’s too late.
